1. Look Beyond the Perfect Picture

An advertisement may sell more than a product. In the passage, a drink is placed beside a smiling student, a spotless desk and a golden sunrise. Together, these details suggest that one purchase could create a perfect morning. The narrator is tired and under pressure, so the promise feels especially attractive.

Before accepting a claim, ask what the product can actually do. A drink cannot organise your notes or change a deadline. Read small qualifications as carefully as the large headline, and notice what the image encourages you to imagine.

It also helps to pause before buying. Compare information from reliable sources and decide whether the product meets a real need. If you are feeling worried or exhausted, a confident slogan may seem more convincing than it deserves. The narrator's final choice is modest but useful: a realistic list. Practical steps will rarely look as exciting as an advertisement, but they may help more than a promise of perfection.

වෙළෙඳ දැන්වීම්වල පරිපූර්ණ රූප හා පොරොන්දු ගැන විමසිලිමත්ව සිතා, මිලදී ගැනීමට පෙර සැබෑ අවශ්‍යතා සහ විශ්වාසදායක තොරතුරු සලකා ප්‍රායෝගික පියවර තෝරාගත යුතුය.

2. I used direct address and practical questions to involve the audience. My examples explain an abstract idea through familiar actions, while a clear final recommendation encourages readers or listeners to make a realistic change.

1. Reminders and personal notes; the claim guarantees perfect recall without evidence.

The answer must match the stated details; accept equivalent accurate wording.

2. The app offers reminders and a place for notes to help students organise their study.

Check the complete meaning, the verb and punctuation. Accept an equally accurate correction.

3. Need a clearer homework routine? Use reminder messages to keep track of tasks and collect your own notes in one place. Try these features alongside regular revision and check whether they suit you. A useful organiser supports your effort; it cannot do the learning for you.

This is one model. Accept a relevant response that includes the requested details, uses clear language and does not invent claims about the source.
